FRATERNAL AND SOLIDARITY GREETINGS TO THE CONGRESS OF THE AMERICAN COMMUNIST PARTY (ACP)

Dear Comrades of the American Communist Party,

The Partido Komunista ng Pilipinas (PKP-1930) extends its warm fraternal and internationalist greetings to the leadership, delegates, members, and supporters of the American Communist Party (ACP) on the occasion of your Congress on 9–10 October 2026.

We convey our solidarity with your members and with American workers engaged in struggles concerning wages, employment, trade-union rights, social protection, peace, and other issues affecting working people.

Your Congress takes place amid major challenges confronting workers and peoples throughout the world: economic inequality and insecurity, continuing geopolitical tensions, military conflicts, enormous military expenditures, and persistent struggles over sovereignty and economic development.

These circumstances underline the continuing importance of dialogue, cooperation, and solidarity among communist, workers', and progressive movements internationally.

The PKP-1930 recognizes that every Communist Party must develop its policies and forms of struggle according to the concrete historical conditions of its own country. At the same time, communist and workers' parties share opportunities to exchange experiences and strengthen international cooperation around common concerns affecting working people.

We therefore hope that your Congress provides a productive forum for examining the conditions of the American working class, assessing your Party's organizational experience, discussing your political program, and determining the tasks that your organization sets for itself in the coming period.

The PKP-1930 likewise reaffirms the importance of peace, national sovereignty, international cooperation, social progress, and the right of peoples to determine their own paths of development free from foreign domination and coercion.

We stand for peaceful relations among nations and for the settlement of international disputes through diplomacy and dialogue rather than military confrontation. At a time when conflicts in different regions threaten wider escalation, the peoples of the world have a profound interest in preventing another catastrophic global

We also recognize the importance of strengthening links among workers across national boundaries. Filipino and American workers face different national circumstances, yet both confront fundamental questions concerning wages, employment security, workers' organization, access to essential social services, and the distribution of the wealth that their labor helps create.

International solidarity should therefore contribute to stronger understanding and cooperation among working people while respecting the independence, sovereignty, and particular conditions of every nation and movement.

On the occasion of your Congress, the Partido Komunista ng Pilipinas (PKP-1930) sends its best wishes for productive deliberations and constructive discussions among your delegates.

May relations and dialogue between our parties and between the working peoples of the Philippines and the United States continue to develop on the basis of mutual respect, solidarity, peace, and international cooperation.

Long live international working-class solidarity!
Long live the solidarity of the Filipino and American working peoples!
For peace, national sovereignty, social progress, and international solidarity!
Workers of all countries, unite!
